INSCRIPTIONS UPON THE TOMBSTONES

in the

OLD CEMETERY AT NORTHFIELD, Mass.

Copied by Mary T. Stratton

From

"A HISTORY OF THE
TOWN OF NORTHFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS
FOR 150 YEARS" by
J. H. Temple and George Sheldon

The following inscriptions embrace all that can be decyphered now, a few of the older ones having become obliterated by age and the abrasion of many years exposure to frost and tempest upon an unsuitable material. The peculiarities of orthography and punctuation have been followed strictly. There are other burial grounds in the town, whose inscriptions have not been copied.

"Blessed with good intellectual parts
Well skilled in two important arts
Nobly he filled the double station
Both of a preacher and physician
To cure men's sicknesses and sins
He took unwearied care and pains
And strove to make his patient whole
Through in body and soul.
He lov'd his God, lov'd to do good
To all his friends vast Kindness show'd
Nor could his enemies exclaim
And say he was not kind to them
His labors met a sudden close
Now he enjoys a sweet repose
And when the just to life shall rise
Among the first he'll mount the skies."

O think by it what here is told
That life is short and soon you'll be
In an untry'd eternity
I once stood with you on life's stage
Life's busy scenes did us engage
But now in land beneath your feet
Prepare your solemn change to meet
For God above has called me home
My tongue in dust now speaks to none
But while you read and here me view
Learn that the grave was made for you."

And passing rich with eighty pound a year
Remote from towns he ran his godly race
Nor ever changed or wished to change his place

In duty faithful prompt at every call
He watched and wept he pray'd and felt for all

He tryd each art reproved each dull delay
Allured to brighter worlds and led the way."

And nought but vice and folly felt her frown
She wept with the distressed their sorrows bore
And glanced with generous kindness to the poor
Beside the bed of trembling and dismay
She hope inspired and smoothed deaths rugged way

But her best virtues to her friends were known

And her last triumph endless glories crown."

But in the living God

My children, friends, spectators all who view

This marble stone this motto learn tis true
Health, wealth, and honours all are empty things

They fly with quicker speed than eagles wings

Death sudden Death the Bubble quickly bursts

And sinks the Owner instantly in Dust
Th industrious frugal Hand its action cease
The cautious watchful Eye is clos'd
Here sleeps my Body never more to wake Till Christ shall come and it to Glory take."

And in the furrow the grain is sown
Beauties that sleep throu' winters reign
When spring returns revive again
Shall then the Friend o'er whom we mourn
Never to Life again return
Great Source of Life, Light, Love and Joy

Let no such tho't our hope destroy
Our lively hope that sometime hence
Thro' the Redeemer's Influence
On whom she plac'd her hope and trust
She'll burst this Tomb, shake off her dust
Assend to where God hold his throne
And Immortality put on."
